Office 2010 meets hollywood flair

Posted by: admin in Technology , Microsoft on Jul 9, 2009

Microsoft has just released it's trailer for Office 2010.

Looking like something that would be directed by John Woo and starring Tom Cruise the trailer is quite impressive. It mixes Hollywood style action shots and suspense with an underlying satire that's not common from the microsoft camp.

So what is twitter and whats a tweet anyway

Posted by: admin in Web Sites on May 27, 2009

So heres a question we here all the time

what is Twitter??

Twitter is a free Social Networking and micro blogging service that enables its users to send and read other users' updates known as tweets.

Tweets are text based posts of up to 140 characters in length which are displayed on the user's profile page and delivered to other users who have subscribed to them (known as followers).

Senders can restrict delivery to those in their circle of friends or, by default, allow anybody to access them. Users can send and receive tweets via the Twitter website, SMS (text messages) or external applications. The service is free to use over the Internet.

So to put this in easy to understand terms Twitter is a way to tell people exactly what you are doing every second of the day. Some call it voyeuristic some call it a breakthrough call it what you will it's ridiculously popular and shows no signs of going away any time soon.

give it a try

verbal notes. Once done with the recording its a snap to send your thoughts to someone or keep them on file for later use. I currently use this technology as I am driving in between clients so I can capture my thoughts.

The application is $35 but is well worth it if you find yourself forgetting things after meetings or site visits. Also you can subscribe to voice to text service. This will allow you to send your recording out to and get back a message typed out in a Word format. The technology that converts it text is 50/50 some people it works great others it doesn't understand your version of english. I would recommend testing before signing up for a plan.
